

About Pin Drop

Pin Drop presents the best in short fiction through a critically-acclaimed programme of live and recorded sessions in London, LA and NY performed by authors, actors and other outstanding talents working with and partners and venues including the Royal Academy of Arts, Burberry Makers House and BAFTA.

Our programme is centred around a simple ethos of bringing to life remarkable literature - and delivering a powerfully human experience in our hyper-connected world. This has captured the imagination of our diverse and culturally-engaged audiences, who enthusiastically embrace Pin Drop.

Pin Drop was founded by Simon Oldfield, a respected curator, and the award-winning author and journalist, Elizabeth Day. Every live Pin Drop event features extraordinary talent - from emerging writers and actors to prominent figures - including Stephen Fry, William Boyd, Juliet Stevenson, Jacob Fortune-Lloyd, Russell Tovey, Richard Dawkins, Sir Peter Blake and Dame Eileen Atkins, amongst others.

Pin Drop runs the annual Pin Drop Short Story Award in collaboration with the Royal Academy of Arts and also produces podcasts and films, which are available on our site and iTunes.

"Pin Drop is wonderfully innovative... I really believe in Pin Drop"

– Stephen Fry

"Pin Drop is a wonderful and rare conception. The perfect antidote to the sound-bite culture."

William Boyd, Bestselling Author

"Pin Drop is a visionary organisation, that want to take literature into different contexts, and we are delighted, always, to work with them in doing so."

Tim Marlow, *Artistic Director,
Royal Academy of Arts*
